So basically what I know about PS is that it is a secret organization that has some connection within the actual administration of Uchicago. It is centered around a mysterious room, experiments that we've heard about, and things called Rens. Over the summer, I noticed the very first link that was sent out on the first email with everything, so I followed it, and was following the transcripts as they were put up. I ended up getting really excited once it got to some of the later ones and reached out to some friends of mine in the girl's groupchat. They ended up putting a groupchat together to discuss stuff we learned in the transcripts, so that's how I got started. We reached out to Ana, worked through Ana to try and figure out what is in the transcripts. Eventually I got into the discord with the bots, the twitch streams showed up and by that time we started recruiting other people. Since then we've been following the Penny live streams, the twitter showed up, the Ren's snapchat scenario. I was one of the people in the hangout we were sent. I haven't gotten a letter, but we've been talking a lot about the letters that were sent out after Penny's Livestream. We've also been working on the engineering stuff. I'm personally not really a coder, so I've been working more on the riddles, the bots, and bringing people together, I guess that's sort of what I've been up to. Trawling along trying to find different codes and tricks.

I really loved figuring out the puzzles, I like riddles a little bit more than puzzles because sometimes I get frustrated when there is only one answer that is going to work. I have really been loving getting the transcripts, putting pieces together, asking different questions, and finding out 'ok, the number eleven is really important, where does that show up, how many ways does eleven come into play. That kind of thing. I really loved working with other people, because even though I'm not a coder and all these past engineering constructions have all been coding, I still get to work with other people and get what they're doing. I've sort of been running the doc. I don't know if other people have told you but we've got a doc going and we've been recording everything that's happened, everything that's gone down. It's really rad, it is up to 32 pages now. Looking back at where we've started it is so cool that we've got all these people together on this. So my favorite part has been meeting new people and using everybody's different aspects, everybody's different ways of looking at things to try and solve a new riddle. I love hearing 'now that the squirrels are in play, what's their importance?' I love hearing all the different pieces and trying to put them together. It has been pretty crazy, there has been a whole bunch of pieces to try and put together, and we don't really get that many clues about how they all fit.
